Analogous data collection

Aletsch Arena AG also collects personal data from you outside the website. This may be the case, for example, if you contact us by e-mail or telephone independently of the website or if we need to record your information (e.g. your e-mail address or telephone number) in order to contact you.

We also collect your personal data when you register for an event or book an adventure/experience at one of our information centres. In this case, we obtain essentially the same data as we require for bookings on the website (see "When booking via our online shop"). The consent of the guest forms the legal basis of this data processing (Art. 6(1)(a) GDPR). In the case of third-party services, our role is limited to that of brokers in that we perform bookings on behalf of the service providers. We forward to the relevant service providers the data needed for carrying out the booking. These service providers are responsible for the further processing of the data in compliance with data protection law. Unless notified otherwise, the service providers will process the data to carry out the booking. They may also engage third parties to process the data on their behalf. Hoteliers, owners of holiday apartments and camping-site operators are also required by law to register you and your fellow travellers with the authorities (see "For the digital reporting system").

In the case of third-party services, we are not responsible for the data processing performed by the service providers. We will, however, store the booking data in our central database, along with any other data that we collect from you in relation to the provision of services, and, subject to your consent, will evaluate it there for marketing purposes (see "Storing your personal data in a central database at Aletsch Arena AG"). The performance of a contract (Art. 6(1)(b) GDPR) forms the legal basis of this data processing.

Retention of data

We process personal data only as long as this is necessary for the purpose for which it was collected or as required by law. If you have set up a user account with us, we will keep the master data you provide for an unlimited period of time. However, you may request the deletion of your account at any time (see "What are your rights?"). We will delete the master data, provided we are not required by law to retain it.

Contract data, which may also include personal data, will be kept by us until the end of the 10-year statutory retention period. Obligations to preserve records arise e.g. from accounting and tax regulations, as well as the obligation to preserve electronic communications. If we no longer need this data to perform the services, the data will be blocked. This means that the data may then only be used for accounting and tax purposes.

If, due to abuse, payment defaults or other legitimate reasons, we wish to refuse further business dealings with an affected person, we will retain the relevant personal data for five years, or, in the event of a recurrence, for 10 years.

What data do we disclose to third parties?

We will only disclose your personal data with your express consent, if we are required to do so by law or if this is necessary to enforce our rights, in particular to enforce claims arising from the contractual relationship.

Various third-party service providers are explicitly mentioned in this Data Privacy Notice (see "What data is collected by us, for what purpose, how long and where is it stored?"). Another service provider to whom personal data is passed on or who has or may have access to personal data is our web hosting service, neusta destination solutions GmbH, Leopoldsstrasse 16, 80802 Munich, Germany (www.neusta-ds.de).
